On the 4th instant the Chief Justice delivered a judgment of very considerable importance to owners of land in the Colony and to the profession. The case in question -Lo On v. LEE Fo Wing-was brought before the Court to ascertain in whom the title to a certain piece of land lay. This land formerly belonged to the estate of the late Mr. Morison, whose representatives in July, 1881, sold it to a Mr. Yu Chow, through whom the defendant claimed. It was proved, by the evidence of the solicitor who prepared the purchase deed on that occasion, that he had carefully perused the muniments of title in the hands of Mr. Monison's representatives, and had, as is usual, searched in the Registry of titles at the Land Office and that the title, as shown both by the deeds and the Registry, was perfectly in order. This fact was, indeed; admitted by all parties. Subsequently Mr. Yu Chow resold the property, which was purchased eventually by the defendant. The latter, being desirous of pulling down the house standing on the land, lately took ample than the present could be steps towards effecting that object, whererepresentative, the plaintiff, an injunction the property. The plaintiff's case was that possession for upwards of twenty years, therefore, having regard to the provisions of each other, felt himself constrained to Sand 4 William IV., c. 27, he could not now | decide that the Imperial Act must prevail pay rent to, or acknowledge the title of, any the local one, must be taken to override sirable to comment on.

ascertain is the statute law bearing on the point at issue. By the statute of William IV. it is provided that, after the Sist December, 1893, no person shall make any entry or distress, or bring an action to recover any land or rent, but within twenty years next after the time at which the right to make such entry or distress, or to bring such action, shall have first accrued to some person through whom he claims. And subsequent provisions of the Act define the time from which the disqualifying limitastatute were to be taken as the sole criterion have to be conceded, in this case, that, asaffects the question, and which should, interested in the land, no such hardthough apparently, having regard to the ship as the present could have occur-Chief Justice's decision, it does not, operate red. The point at issue was practically this. The plaintiff averred that he had held the the whole route from Canton to Tali-foo. land for over twenty years without acknowledgment of any one's title, and so was entitled to it altogether, under 3 and 4 William IV. c. 27. The defendant argued that he had all the rights of the Crown (being in effect a lessee from the Crown), one Communications on Editorial matters should be of which rights was that the Statute of Limitations did not affect the Crown, and fur ther he relied on the local Registration Ordinance, and maintained that, under its proout notice of the plaintiff's claim, and with a With great respect to his Lordship ruling, it is very difficult to see how he could have arrived at the decision has given. It may at once be conceded that the Imperial Act applies to this Colony, as indeed his Lordship has held that it does, but, putting uside the defend ant's argument that he possessed Crown rights, which scarcely appears to us to be sustainable, the local Ordinance also applies, and where the two come into conflict, as in this case, is it not reasonable to suppose that the enactment which should prevail is, not the one passed for the benefit of the mother country before Hongkong was even thought of, but the one which was enacted by the Government of the Colony, with the subsequent assent of the Crown, to meet what the local legislature considered to be the wants and requirements of the island, and which has worked down to the present time, unamended and unrevoked, with satisfaction to the community? The more we look at the local Ordinance, the more it seems to us that the defendant should have obtained the judgment, for, by the apparent spirit of the Ordinauce, and by its actual letter, even if the defendant had had express notice of the plaintiff's claim before he bought (which he had not) and had still persisted in buying the land in the face of, and despite, that express notice, and had duly registered (as he did) his purchase deed, even then, he, and not the plaintiff, would be, as it appears to us, the party entitled to the property. What other reasonable construction can be put upon the local Ordinance, or what better exnished of a case properly invoking its upon the Prece Goods Guild, who were in ac- application? It is, in the wording tual possession of the premises, and kept a the provisions we have quoted, perfectly fire engine there, obtained through their clear and free from ambiguity, and the clause which relates to notice of a prior claim restraining the defendant from dealing with does not seem to us to be capable of bearing a second interpretation. There was a good attendance of members, and the meeting Temperance was delivered by Major Cardew. At the commencement the gallant officer said it was beginning to be fully realised that the only system for the reclamation of the drunkard of any real efficacy was Gospel Temperance. It had long since sen recognised in America, where most ministers were total abstainers, and great efforts to that ment, and had got 90, 00 people to take gospel temperance ple ge within nine months. With no drunkenness there would be but very little crime, and it behoved against intemperance. Drink was the greatest enemy to the religion, as even under the influence of a moderate quantity of drink, conscience became deadened, and therefore efforts should be made to take the evil influence away. Christians who drank were often stumbling blocks in the way of the cause. The speaker strongly urged that religion and temperance should go together. Their object was to save men's sonls, and if drink stood in the way, they must do combat, and faith, which conquered the world, give them the

Any further information on matters of detail will be furnished by my hon, friend the Acting Colonial Secretary and I think it would be more convenient if the Acting Colonial Secretary were appointed the Chairman of the Finance Committee. It has been usual for the Chief Justice, as the senior

HIS. EXCELLENCY.—I think I can give my hop, friend some explanation about this vote to Major Palmer. He was called upon by the Governor last year to make a report on the proposed observatory. He made a report, and sent it in on the 1st October last year, and the report he sent in on the 24th February was a continuation of and supplementary to the previous report. which was sent home so for back as October. He profited by the circumstance of the United States man-of-war Palos being here at that time and obtained the loan of the scientific instruments to determine the latitude by observations of the stars. I suppose in October he could not do it for want of the instruments. I look upon ordered by the Secretary of State. A great deal of labour was incurred by Major Palmer in making these calculations. HIS EICELLENCY—That is all the business, entlemou. Perhaps before the Council breaks op the members might be glad to learn that the Se retary of State has decided that the construction f the Tytam waterworks shall be directly undertaken—the low level scheme. I may explain that there were two schemes. One was the high level cheme. 500 feet above the level of the sea, but itewas impossible to make a reservoir there: the other was an alternative scheme 400 feet above the level of the sea, and to construct a dam 15 feet high, which would take the same quantity of water as the upper one. It was ivided into two schemes, the first to build the 15 feet dam and if that was not sufficient afterwards to raise It to 95 feet when the finance of the colony could stand the expenditure, which would give an enormous amount of water. The Secretary of State has been in consultation with Mr. Price. Mr. Chadwick, and ir. Rawlingon, an eminent engineer, and has come to the decision that the lower scheme should be carried out at once in its entirety; that is to say, that the dam shall be built up to 95 feet at once instead of to 15 feet first, and raising it afterwards. Mr. Price has been instructed to hav the machinery at once for commencing work at each end, and to engage foromen who understand this kind of work. About six will be required and one of the reasons why the Secretary of State thought it desirable the work should be men being on the spot it would be cheaper to the colony to continue the work and go through with it than in the course of a few years to have to take it up again and have to bring out another lot of men. I have instructions to commence the work at once if possible, but the Surveyor-General reports that it is impossible to commence until this boring machinery arrives. I think it will come out in about a month. The work will take about two years or two and a half years to complete. The Council adjourned sine die.

A HORRIBLE REMINISCENCE

Phidos Alexin, who died in Lamia the other day, at the great age of ninety-four, hadin his youth contributed -- but only under | Canton and Shanghai Gauzes, Crape Shawls, compulsion—to one of the most terrible deeds perpetrated by the Turkish forces employed to crush the Greek rebellion of 1821. He was plying his trade as a master carpenter, in his native town, when Omer Brionis Pasha entered Lamia in triumph, after his victory over the insurgents at Thermopylæ, where he had taken several insurrectionary leaders prisoners, amongst them the celebrated champion of Hellenic liberties, Athanasios Diakos. The flerce Moslem commander doomed that beroic youth to be spitted on a wooden stake and roasted alive; and Alexin was required, on pain of death, to supply the executioners of this barbarous sentence with all the implements needed for its fulfilment: that is to say, a spit of timber, fitted at either end with a handle, by which it might be made to revolve, and two stout wooden treatles, provided with circular grooves, wherein both extremities of the stake might have free play during the luckless patriot's martyrdom. On the 26th April, 1821, as soon as Alexin had completed the task imposed upon him, the Pasha's inhuman decree was carried out to the letter. Diakos displayed unflinching fortitude throughout his horrible torments; and his death scene, to which Alexin was a witness, made an impression upon the latter's mind that time could not efface. He retained it indeed, with undiminished vividness until within a few hours of his demise.

A FACETIOUS UNDERTAKER.

One of the most solemn-faced men, while on duty, is David Schuyler, an undertaker of Philadelphia, but at other times he is extremely social and very apt to play tricks upon his friends. He is peculiarly devoted to his trade and his house is furnished with certain peculiar emblems of his calling. He delights in offering cigars from a trick box, which conceals a grinning skeleton that pops up with a weed in his bony fingers when the lid is lifted. Mr. Samuel Hemple, the actor, TURNITURE WAREHOUSE. is an old friend of his, and when the thirtysecond anniversary of his debut arrived, about two weeks ago, the undertaker bonoured the event by inviting him and a few mutual friends to a dinner. The invitations were printed upon mourning paper, and at the first sight of the skull and crossed bones which headed them, one might have mistaken the note for an official warning of the Ku-Kiux-Klan. When Mr. Hemple arrived he was ushered into a darkened room, where only some wax tapers were burning.

A table stood in the centre of the room, covered by a handsome black pall that reached to the floor, and gave it the appearance of a catafalque. Upon this the dinner was laid. The dishes were all appropriately arranged, with fringes of black and white paper around them. The chicken, as it lay "Hong List," Orders for Subscriptions and in its dish upon its back, had a white choker, a blacknecktie and a white dickey at its neck. made of the same material. The salt-cellars had black caps and long, trailing mourning bands around them. The most unique arrangement upon the table was a silver toothpick holder, a small hearse with horses attached, driver upon the box and doors to open at the rear and, where a miniature casket, containing the picks, wasdrawnforth. The mashed potatoes were dug out of a mound, covered with roast-potatoe jackets. which, with sprigs of green planted here and there, looked like a shady burial lot, with several wooden tombstones standing upright

The ice cream was moulded in the shape of a coffin, and the cuts of pie were made in a similar shape. The outire dinner was made as emblematical of the undertaker's trade as taste and ingenuity could devise, and after the first shudder was passed the guests onjoyed themselves in spite of the funereal surroundings. Mr. Schuyler heartily enjoyed the discomfiture of his guests as they entered the room and looked upon the singular elition. sight, and says the fun he derived from the affair amply compensated him for the trouble of preparing for it.
